

The Graphic's Own SOCIETY COLUMN

No. 13
Mrs. Julian M. Gerard

A half dozen informal movie close-ups of Mrs. Julian M. Gerard of 161 East 63rd Street, snapped the other day as she left a fashionable Park Avenue restaurant after luncheon. Mrs. Gerard was one of the attractive society matrons who were active in the sale of the Memorial Day poppies for the benefit of the wounded veterans of the World War.

Motion by Rasmussen.

The Belmont Track has

'had a greater attraction

'than ever for me this

'season and I've been en-

'joying many afternoons of

'racing down there of late."

THE ROYAL BOUDOIR of Princess Marie of Roumania in the palace at Cotroceni, near Bucharest. Note the prominent corner given to the photograph of King Alexander of Yugoslavia who became the husband of this popular twenty-two-year-old Princess last Thursday. The royal wedding ceremony in which all the quaint Serbian traditions and superstitions were scrupulously observed took place in the Cathedral at Belgrade.

Wide World.

Left—A LIVE FAIRY GODMOTHER. Miss Charlotte Sharman, who at ninety still actively manages the home for girl orphans she established in Southwark, London, some sixty years ago. The grand old lady, pictured here telling bedtime stories to a trio of her 200 wards, is thoroughly modern in every way and personally types all her own letters.

Radio & Herbert.

MISS CATHERINE CHASE poses with "Ching Ling V," one of the handsome chows to win a blue ribbon at the Ladies' Kennel Club show at Mineola last week. A black cocker spaniel, Lucknow Lottery, owned by J. R. Beard, was declared the best dog among the 600 of the various breeds at the show.

Wide World.

Right—POIRET IN HIS PARIS PALACE. Paul Poiret, perhaps the world's most famous creator of women's fashions, at his desk in his Parisian fashion palace, where amidst an extravagance which out-rides that of the court of Louis XIV in the splendor of its fittings, the most comely of French mannequins parade Poiret's creations before buyers from American and European capitals.

"P. & A."

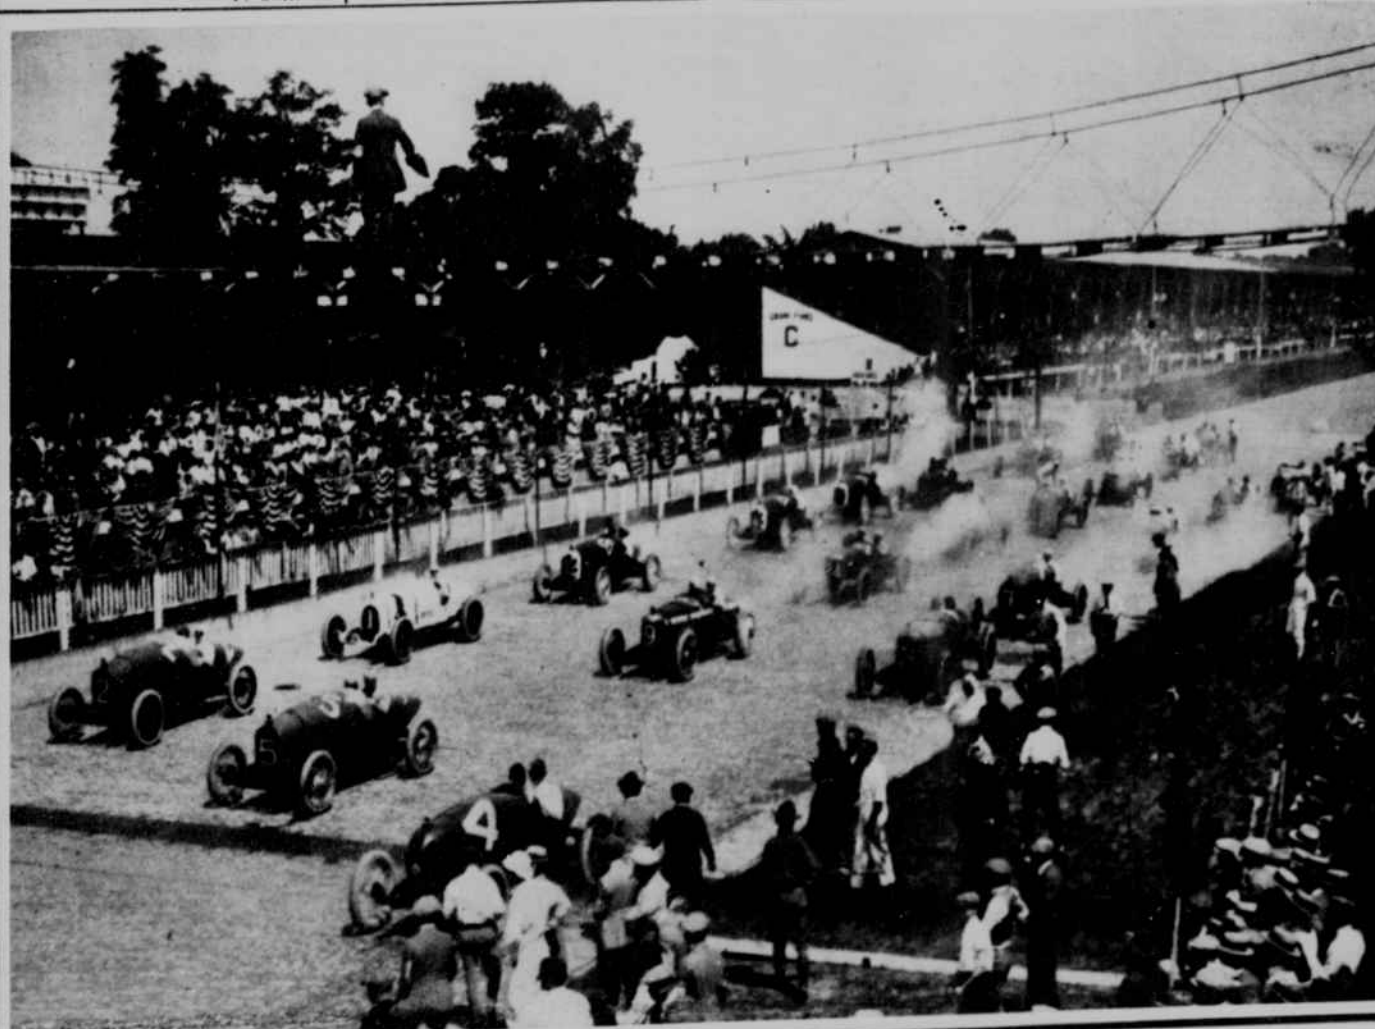

"BON VOYAGE, BOYS!" Hizoner bids goodbye to Rodman and Dick as they sail for Europe aboard the Olympic. Police Commissioner Enright is off on a junket ostensibly for a six-week study of foreign crime waves, while Honorary Deputy Commissioner Wanamaker is crossing for pleasure only.

Underwood.

500-MILE AUTO RACE. Leading from start to finish, Jimmy Murphy (left) of Los Angeles, won the Memorial Day 500-mile auto race at the Indianapolis Speedway before a crowd of 135,000 spectators in the world's record-breaking time of 5:17:30—an average speed of 94.48 miles an hour. The photo at the right shows Captain Eddie Rickenbacker on the suspension bridge about to start the race. At the left is Murphy just after winning, with the grime of his five hours' driving still in evidence.

International.

BRITAIN'S NEW AMATEUR GOLF CHAMP. E. W. Holderness, of Walton Heath who, followed by a gallery of five thousand spectators, recently won the British amateur golf championship by defeating John Caven, of Cockran Castle, Scotland, one up, in the final round played over the windy course at Prestwick.

International.

